(MARTIN BORMANN)

On July 7, 1965, Mr. Karl Bruesselbach, German Consul, Denver, Colorado, telephonically advised that he had received telephonic information from Mr. Ernest G. Hesse, who is employed by the Englewood Iron Works, 1085 West Hampden Avenue, Englewood, Colorado, telephone 781-4474, that he, Hesse, was of the opinion that the owner of the Heavenly Charco Burgers, which is located at 7075 West Alameda Avenue, Denver, Colorado, is identical with Martin Bormann.

Mr. Bruesselbach said he had no further information concerning this matter except that Mr. Hesse said he had seen the owner of the Heavenly Charco Burgers and felt that he bore a close resemblance to the picture recently published in the Reader's Digest.

On July 26, 1965, Mr. Bruce Katchen, 3825 Mariposa Street, Denver, Colorado, advised that he owned the shopping center where the Heavenly Charco Burgers establishment is located and that the owner of this establishment is Mr. Phil (No Middle Name) Meyers, who resides at 1181 South Colorado Boulevard, Denver, Colorado. Mr. Katchen stated that he has known the Meyers family for the past twenty-five years and that Mr. Meyers is about sixty years of age and is a swarthy man who has broken speech. He stated that he is sure that he would not be Martin Bormann.

The records of the Retail Credit Men's Association, Denver, Colorado, as of August 6, 1965, reflect that Phil Meyers is single, and presently operates the Heavenly Charco Burgers Restaurant at 7075 West Alameda Avenue, Denver, Colorado. He has had satisfactory credit since 1948 and formerly resided at 10601 East Colfax in Aurora, Colorado, and 1234 Grant Street, Denver. He listed a dependent, which is his mother, and
